

Rundle illness serious

IAN RUNDLE, Wycombe Wanderers' utility defender, could well be out of football for the remainder of the season. He has meningitis — a disease of the spine — and is currently in Radcliffe Hospital.

Ian's last game was against Banbury United, where he played after receiving pain-killing injections. His condition is said to be serious and he was unconscious earlier this week.

With both Rundle and Derek Gamblin out, Wanderers will field the same team as on Saturday against Worthing for their Rothmans Isthmian League game at home to St. Albans City tonight (Tuesday). Keith Searle, who injured an ankle playing for England against West Germany last Wednesday, suffered no ill effects on Saturday in the Cup.

The Saints are going through one of their worst seasons ever in the league this term. At present they are third from the foot of the table with only two victories — against Corinthian Casuals and Bromley. Only three goals have scored away from home so far and with only three players remaining from last year, manager Tommy Coleman has had to completely rebuild the side.
